

Plea for Counter Injunction Is Filed By Rail Strikers

In Suit Filed in Washington, Electrical Workers Attack the Legality of Daugherty Injunction.

WILL HOLD HEARING ON SUIT TOMORROW

Leader Says He Hopes Action to Have Nation-Wide Scope If Successful.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Washington, September 7.—Legality of the order obtained by the government from Federal Judge Wilkerson at Chicago, restraining the striking railway shop crafts and the railroad brotherhoods from interfering with transportation in prosecution of the shopmen's strike, was assailed today in a suit filed in the supreme court of the District of Columbia by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, one of the organizations on strike. The question of jurisdiction of the Chicago court also was raised by the petition which denied that the plaintiffs had been guilty of any illegal act "before or since" July 1.

The electrical workers asked a permanent injunction to prevent enforcement locally the provisions of the Chicago order.

Tomorrow there will be a meeting of the executive council, consisting of the six executives of the shop crafts and Mr. Jewell, and Monday the policy committee of ninety will meet. The object of the sessions was not stated in the call.

At union headquarters it was said that the meeting of the executive council would be secret and that no announcements of any kind would be made. Mr. Jewell who dropped from sight following the granting of a temporary injunction against the strikers last Friday still was absent today and it was said at his home that he would return from New York tomorrow. He was reported to have gone to New York after visiting Baltimore last week.

In the absence of Mr. Jewell and other members of the executive council, union officials refused to comment on reports that Mr. Jewell was planning to submit to the council a proposal for a settlement with individual roads. It was pointed out that the meeting Monday would take place simultaneously with the hearing before Federal Judge Wilkerson of the action by the government seeking to make the temporary injunction granted last Friday against the strikers permanent.

Western railway executives were almost a unit in declaring that they knew of no negotiations looking toward separate settlements with individual roads.

May Have Wide Effect.

Department of Justice officials, unofficially expressed the opinion that if the court should grant the temporary restraining orders, it would open up wide avenues leading to possible upsetting by courts of other jurisdiction of injunctions and restraining orders granted by the district supreme court, such as those in various packers and other important cases under the Sherman and Clayton acts.

The entire question, it was said officially, centers on section 15 of the Clayton act, and section 5 of the Sherman law, which provide that in suits brought thereunder the judge of any federal jurisdiction may have the power to subpoena witnesses and documents in other jurisdictions.

While references to alleged negotiations at various unnamed places looking to settlements with individual roads continued to be heard, these still remained unconfirmed tonight. Mr. Noonan denied flatly, so far as his union was concerned, that there had been any conference with railroad executives since the last New York meeting, adding that none was in prospect. The forthcoming meeting in Chicago of the strikers' general policy committee, according to his information, Mr. Noonan said, is for the purpose of discussing recent developments in the strike situation.

Prospects for Peace.

Some administration officials who have kept in touch with the transportation controversy reiterated today they had a reason to believe that the prospects for settlement of the strike on several individual roads appeared to be improving.

It was intimated by some in the confidence of President Harding and Attorney-General Daugherty that any persistent attempt to obtain service on B. M. Jewell, leader of the striking shopmen, of the federal court injunction at Chicago had been deferred because of the belief that he was engaged in negotiations which might result in a settlement of the strike.

After a conference between Mr. Daugherty and Senator Borah, it was reiterately by government officials that no effort would be made to retain in the Chicago permanent injunction, when and if granted, the provisions which have been interpreted as tending to interfere with "free speech."

The attorney-general and his advisers were said to have come to the conclusion that the temporary order went unnecessarily far in its restrictions.

White House Conference. The question was under discussion at a conference Attorney-General Daugherty and Chairman Cummins, of the senate interstate commerce committee, held at the white house with President Harding tonight. No statement was made after the conference, however, beyond that "a certain phase of the national coal situation" had been considered.

Discussing his conference with the attorney-general, Senator Borah said he could not quote Mr. Daugherty but that he had given his criticisms of the restraining order.

LEADERS OF RAIL STRIKERS HURRY TO CHICAGO MEET

Called by President Jewell, the Heads of Shop Crafts Will Hold Secret Parley.

POLICY COMMITTEE MEETS ON TUESDAY

Rumors That Settlement Will Be Discussed Are Received in Silence by Union Officials.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, September 7.—Rail strike leaders were enroute to Chicago tonight in response to the summons of B. M. Jewell, president of the railway employees department of the American Federation of Labor.

Tomorrow there will be a meeting of the executive council, consisting of the six executives of the shop crafts and Mr. Jewell, and Monday the policy committee of ninety will meet. The object of the sessions was not stated in the call.

At union headquarters it was said that the meeting of the executive council would be secret and that no announcements of any kind would be made. Borah Replies.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, sponsor of the bill, denied insinuations that the proposition would lead to open issues but added that even if it did "there can be no solution of any question by dodging and evading."

Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa, who had introduced a bill similar to the house anti-proteering measure, announced he would seek early action on the conference. The house, however, will not be in session until Monday and no action therefore can come on the bill before that time.

The measure, besides creating a federal fuel distributing agency and the post of federal fuel administrator, confers broad powers on the interstate commerce commission, with respect to embargoes on coal shipments. The fuel distributor is empowered to determine coal supplies and requirements and to investigate charges of profiteering and may recommend to the commission the withholding of cars from mines or dealers found to be taking exorbitant prices.

Four Fliers Die In Flying Circus At Fair Grounds

And Several Other Victims of Death Draughts Are Ill or Blind.

New York, September 7.—Brooklyn authorities engaged in a losing fight Thursday to prevent further deaths from bootleg liquor.

Although more arrests were made and one source of supply of poison whisky raided, the number of deaths so far this week rose to eleven, while several more victims were either ill or blinded.

District Attorney Ruston, leading the raiders, said he would search all restaurants, groceries, candy shops and other places in the red hook district likely to sell liquor.

"We won't bother to use search warrants," he said. "The emergency demands that we strike first and apologize afterwards."

A woman giving the name of Margaret Burns was identified by description of several victims as the wife of a bootlegger who sold them liquor. She was arrested while sweeping the sidewalk in front of her home, and told police her husband always locked her out when he went away. The door of the place was broken in and various kinds of liquor and ingredients were found in a pantry. The husband escaped arrest.

Martin Connolly, a printer, and his brother-in-law, Thomas Padden, were the last to die from the effects of poison booze.

As Connolly staggered half-blinded into the house where both lived, Padden, thinking to cheer him for what he believed a temporary illness, said, "Get off, Martin. Why don't you drink good whisky, as I do?"

A physician was called for Connolly, but he died in agony.

Three hours later Padden became violently ill and died in 40 minutes.

DEBATE FACT-FINDING COMMISSION MEASURE

Bill Passed Creates Fuel
Distribution Agency and Empowers I. C. C. to Order
Embargoes.

Washington, September 7.—With only seven negative votes recorded, the senate late today passed the first of the emergency coal bills, the house measure designed to check profiteering and control the distribution of coal. The vote was 40 to 7 and the measure as amended was sent to conference.

Passage of the profiteering bill was followed immediately by consideration of the fact-finding commission measure but final action on it was deferred by a sudden and at times heated debate over provisions which would direct the commission to study the question of nationalization of the mines, along with other phases of the industry.

The commission bill was amended to direct the agency to make a separate investigation of the anthracite industry and to inquire into any "organized relationships" between miners and operators, if they exist. The change was a direct result of the recent settlement of the anthracite tie-up.

der would be sent unless far-reaching plans had been made. At the arrival of nine British warships at Constantza, ostensibly to protect British shipping on the Black Sea, it is believed to be a move made to frustrate the plans of the Kossuthites to cross by sea to the European side.

Italy has definitely stated that the conference in the Near East will be convened September 15 or as soon thereafter as possible. Great Britain is understood to regard as futile any attempt to press the Turks for an armistice on the eve of expected victory.

SMYRNA FIRST?

Paris, September 7.—"We intend to take Smyrna and talk afterwards," said Sir Edward Grey, European representative of the Angora government, told the United News when asked what answer his government is likely to make to the Greek request for an armistice.

"We cannot now discuss an armistice," Sir Edward said. "We intend to take Smyrna and talk afterwards unless the Greeks completely surrender and unconditionally accept our terms in which we will demand complete evacuation of Asia Minor and the surrender of all war material." The French representative said he did not believe the Greeks could hold out Smyrna. The Greeks are retreating in disorder, he said, and are anxious to get aboard the warships waiting at Smyrna.

"Our advance guard is encountering little opposition," Sir Edward said. "Soon we shall enter cities which the Greeks have abandoned or it will be driven into the sea. It is evident that the Greeks intended to embark part of their troops at Munda and we did not give the ultimatum. If they do not surrender we will enter Smyrna with fixed bayonets."

Los Angeles, Calif., September 7.—"It's a boy!" William S. Hart's attorney told the famous "two-gun man" of the movies here Thursday.

"I'm glad," said Bill, just like that, and went on talking about a happy settlement with his wife, Winifred Weston, who left him several months ago following an estrangement between the two.

Hart completely missed the cue that all moviedom, at least, that part that knows its plots, had been throwing to him ever since Bill, Jr., weight nine pounds, arrived at the home of his maternal grandmother in Santa Monica on Wednesday. There was no moaning up the road to Santa Monica no gurgling to his son and heir and no closing kiss for the young and beautiful wife and mother.

It is understood that Hart hasn't even communicated with his wife.

that she has started divorce proceedings, naming Mrs. Starr as co-respondent. He did refer to his wife though when speaking of the absurdity of a married man kidnaping a young girl.

"Camille is a beautiful girl," he said, "but what in the world would I do with her? I'm a married man and a married man has all he can do to look after his wife."

"This has gotten me into great trouble and if Warren Robert had any money I would certainly make him pay for it," Graham declared. "They tell me, though, his wife has all the money and that doesn't help me, because he is the one who has sworn out the warrant. If there is no way to make him pay I'm going to see that he does it."

In commenting on the report that friends of the Lamar family saw him and the two girls in Albany, where they are said to have stopped to change a tire, Graham said: "I don't know where Albany is. I've never been there in my life and I haven't changed a tire in 60 days."

"Did Miss Lamar mention to you that she was thinking of leaving home?" he was asked.

"Yes, she told me she was planning to matriculate this fall in a dramatic art school to prepare herself for the stage," he answered promptly. "We talked a great deal of the movie game as she is a trained actress and quite considerably, but she said she was not interested in that line of acting. I don't know whether she was saying that to throw me off the track or not. It is hard to tell about women."

Graham is 34 years of age. He is connected with Owen & Owen, of Detroit, as an insurance agent, with his southern headquarters in Atlanta.

Their acquaintance began on Friday, August 25, and ended four days later at midnight on that Tuesday when the two girls mysteriously left Macon, Graham declared.

"The last I saw of Camille was standing on a corner about two blocks from her home around twelve o'clock Tuesday night," he said, rubbing a well manicured hand over a blond pompadour. "We had been riding for three or four hours, and I left her on the corner because she did not want her grandmother to know that she had been out with me."

"Immediately after leaving I went to the Dempsey, packed my baggage, and headed for Dublin with another traveling man. I reached there on Wednesday morning and can account for my every move from then until I was arrested in Jacksonville Tuesday afternoon."

Graham is what anyone would term a handsome man. He is tall with broad shoulders and clear-cut features. He has white, even teeth, large, grayish eyes, and a fair complexion. As he talks he smiled whimsically. "Now I will tell you all I know about Camille. A drummer friend of mine on hearing that I was coming to Macon gave me her telephone number and told me to look her up."

"I was here two days before I thought about it again. On Friday I came across the card and phoned Camille. I made a date with her that afternoon and spent about fifteen minutes with her."

"I saw her again on Saturday and went driving with her for several hours.

Visited Her Home.

"Sunday afternoon I went to her home and met her grandmother, Mrs. Jack Lamar. No, that is wrong," he said, breaking off and flipping up his cigarette. "I did not know that she was the Valeria Lamar that is missing now or not. I understand there are several sisters. After Monday I didn't dare come again until she phoned for me."

"Tuesday afternoon she phoned me and asked me to meet her on a downtown corner a few blocks from the hotel. I do not know what corner now because I'm not familiar with Macon streets. I met her and we went to ride. She told me that she had come down town shopping and had given out of money."

Accepted Camelot Ring.

"She asked me for $20. I gave it to her and I handed her her ring in exchange. I told her I did not want it, but she insisted on my taking it. I made a date with her then for that night. She told me to meet her at the Lanier High school as her grandmother was suspicious of me and did not want me to come to the house."

"About 8 o'clock I met her at the school as she said, and we rode around for three or four hours. At 12 o'clock I put her out on College street in a block or two of her home—and that is the very last time I have heard of Camille."

Graham then traced his movements from that to the last time he was brought back today, a prisoner in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Charles Roberts.

"I spent Wednesday and Wednesday night at Dublin. Thursday morning I went to McRae. I stayed there Thursday, night, and all day Friday. I left there Friday night and arrived at Brunswick Saturday morning and I was required for my mail. I asked them to forward it to me at the Hotel Mason in Jacksonville.

"I arrived in Jacksonville Sunday morning and registered at the hotel. I stayed there until Tuesday, when I was arrested. Since then I have been registered in the County jail."

"Officers say that you did not register at Mason hotel until Thursday morning," he was told. "That is true. Now I can show you my hotel bill which extends from Sunday, September 3, to Tuesday, September 5."

He went over to his coat which was slung on the back of a chair and pulled out the bill bearing the name of the hotel and the dates he stated. "I have no connection whatever with this affair. That pawn ticket they found on me covered for the $25 I lent her. When I reached Jacksonville on Sunday I was broke. I knew that I had to get money to get a personal check cashed so I visited uncle and pawned my diamond studd and the ring, receiving $30 on them."

Nattily Dressed.

Graham wore a large diamond ring on his little finger. Everything about him spelt prosperity in spite of the pawn ticket tales. He was neatly dressed in a white shirt and collar with black tie and gaberdine trousers. He did not hard to believe that his people were very prominent and prosperous," he said.

"I'm from the east and my parents are very prominent," he stated. "I do not wish to give their names or their home address, because I hate to humiliate them."

Graham did not mention losing his wife, though it is understood here shopmen crafts, to quit work through-out the whole country simultaneously, and by concerted action, and for the purpose, openly avowed, of tying up interstate transportation service until their demands be granted, constituted a "conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce."

"By the Sherman act of July 2, 1890, congress declared to be illegal every combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the states, and made it the duty of the attorney general to institute proceeding in equity to prevent and restrain such violations. While any man may lawfully stop working at will, he may not conspire with others to do so if their joint action will interfere with interstate commerce; and if he does quit, while he cannot be required to return to work, he can be prevented from doing anything to effectuate the conspiracy."

"Under the foregoing clearly established principles this strike at its inception could have been enjoined under the Sherman act, unless this law had been changed; and here is where the confusion arises. There has been a loose impression in both lay and professional circles that the injunction, which congress has declared is illegal and should be enjoined.

"In discussing a similar question the supreme court of the United States in 221 U. S. 438, said: 'To hold that restraint of trade under the Sherman anti-trust act or under general principles of law could be enjoined, but that individual, between labor and employer, or between persons seeking employment, and even thus only in a case involving or growing out of a dispute concerning terms or conditions of employment.'

"It is too plain for argument that the above pronouncement Clayton act does not apply to or affect the injunction in a suit by the United States, because the government is not included in the class of litigants which

Barker Denies Chamber
Has Taken Any Stand
On Seniority Rights

Making the flat denial that the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has taken any part whatsoever in seeking to influence the United States railroad labor board with reference to seniority rights for the striking shop craftsmen, Secretary B. S. Barker of the commercial body has sent a letter to President Emmet Quinn, head of the Atlanta central labor organization, asking that an impression recently said to have been made to the contrary be corrected.

In a recent address by W. R. Johnson, who was speaking to the striking railroad men in Atlanta, it is said that the statement was made by him that the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce had wired the labor board in Chicago, asking that the seniority rights be denied the strikers.

This statement Mr. Barker takes exception to, and requests Mr. Johnson and Mr. Quinn, as head of the local union forces, to make whatever correction they can of the matter.

Letter From Barker.

The letter, addressed both to W. R. Johnson, and to President Quinn, as given out by the latter, follows below:

Mr. R. E. Johnson,
Atlanta,
Sir: It has come to the writer's attention that in making an address to the railroad workers, you stated that you and the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce had wired the United States railway labor board, urging that the seniority rights be denied the strikers.

In behalf of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, I want to emphatically deny this statement, for the facts are that the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has not written any individual or our board requesting any action whatsoever.

I think that you should favor us to the extent of a formal denial of this statement, and a copy of this letter is being sent to Emmet Quinn, president of the Federation of Labor, Atlanta, and I would give him full information concerning this matter.

R. BARKER, Secretary.

MRS. ALICE A. BROWNE AT REST IN WEST VIEW

Funeral services of Mrs. Alice A. Browne, 72 years old, beloved Atlanta woman, were held Thursday afternoon at the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, with burial in West View cemetery.

Mrs. Browne was the mother of Walter E. Browne, of the W. E. Browne Decorating company, who has been in business in Atlanta for about 18 years. She was a native of New York state although she was for many years a resident of Chicago. She had made her home in Atlanta for the past 10 years, and during that time she had been one of the best known members of the All Saints' Episcopal church.

Mrs. Browne was a cousin of the Mr. J. Carroll Beckwith, one of the most distinguished portrait painters of America. She died Wednesday evening at the apartment of her son, W. E. Browne, in the Ponce de Leon apartments.

SHOALS PLAN BACKED BY MINING CONGRESS

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, September 7.—(By Constitution Leased Wire)—Active support for the completion of the Muscle Shoals, Ala., power project, is being given by the American mining congress, which will hold a convention at Chattanooga, Tenn., on September 29, for the purpose of organizing a southern division of the organization. The governor of the southern states, mining operators and others have been invited to assist in the movement which, it is claimed, will result in the creation of a great southern mineral empire.

The most important thing in the south today is the development of cheap power and transportation," said James F. Callebach, of Washington, secretary of the American mining congress. "With this in view, the American mining congress proposes to consolidate its existing state chapters in the south into a southern division, the plan of the entire organization of the American mining congress, behind the completion of the Muscle Shoals project. The development of the Muscle Shoals project is essential, first—for transportation; second—for cheap power; and third—because its completion combined with the proximity of the great mineral resources of the south will make a national market and superior supply of labor, create the possibilities of a great southern mineral empire, which can compete with the products of any other region.

"Many mining operators in the south have never awakened to the possibility of utilizing the efficiency of large operations analogous to the development of the populous states of the west," continued Mr. Callebach.

"The widely diversified and disseminated deposits of graphite, phosphate, manganese, barites, pyrites and other minerals in the southern states and their successful marketing call for collective thought and co-operative action.

"Without highly developed transportation, successful marketing cannot be attained. The mining industry is an essential factor to national prosperity. The constructive work of the American mining congress in behalf of the mining industry during the past 23 years entitles it to the heartiest support, complete endorsement and active co-operation of every man interested in the industrial development of the south."

Mr. Callebach will outline the scope and purpose of the new organization in an address before the Chattanooga meeting, for which preliminary arrangements are being made by Dr. Henry Mac Payne, consulting engineer of the American mining congress.

EDITORS OF 8TH
DISTRICT TO MEET AT ATHENS TODAY

Athens, Ga., September 7.—(Special)—Editors of the eighth district will gather in Athens tomorrow for the annual fall meeting and election of officers. The body will convene in the chamber of commerce at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, and a large attendance is expected.

Following the meeting, the editors and their guests will be given a luncheon at the Georgian hotel at 2 o'clock.

This feature of the day's program will be more or less of a social one and the editors and guests will be called on for talks on subjects other than "gallows" and advertising.

President Ernest Cannan, editor of the Walton Tribune, will preside over the meeting here. Judge A. J. Cobb will deliver the address of welcome to the editors and the response will be by W. T. Bacon, editor of the Madison Messenger.

Others on the program are Bush Burton, of the Lavinia Times; W. A. Shackelford, of the Oglethorpe Echo, and A. C. Camp, of the Oconee Enterprise. Several of the ladies in attendance will talk.

Alexander Johnson Shot to Death by His Brother, Hiram, After Wounding Latter's Son.

Vidalia, Ga., September 7.—(Special)—Alexander Johnson was shot and killed late this afternoon by his brother, Hiram Johnson, after the former had shot and wounded the latter's son.

The tragedy occurred after a quarrel at the latter's home at Long Pond about 20 miles from here. The wounded son of Hiram Johnson was rushed here for treatment. He is not expected to recover. He was shot in the stomach. Following an operation early tonight he was too weak to tell of the shooting.

The Johnson brothers were prominent farmers of the Long Pond community. Hiram Johnson is reported to have fled from Vidalia after the shooting. He had not been arrested tonight.

Edwin F. Johnson
For County Commissioner From the Country

To the White Voters of Fulton County:

On June 24th I announced my candidacy for County Commissioner from the Country, subject to the White Primary to be held September 13th. I take this means of informing the men and women of my position on certain vital issues, and ask you for your suffrage on election day.

I promise to make a careful and exhaustive study of county finances with the object of bringing about a reduction in the tax rate provided it can be done without injury to the machinery of government or curtail constructive development.

Every vote cast by me on contracts spending the people's money will be legally advertised and awarded to the lowest and best bidder, as provided by law, good morals and decent citizenship.

Any citizen who has any request or complaint to make may talk it over with me personally at any time, as I am a man easily approached and who wants to be a representative of every citizen of Fulton County.

The people of the City of Atlanta are large tax payers to the County Treasury and should receive proportionate results. The Aldermen and Councilmen elected to represent the various wards are necessarily more familiar with the development work required in the wards than any County Commissioner can be. Therefore, to secure a just and equal distribution of county funds, I will advocate as a member of the Board of County Commissioners appropriations to carry on development work in the city limits in co-operation with the Aldermen and Councilmen representing each ward. My experience as a member of the General Council of Atlanta convinces me that such a course will insure a just distribution of funds over the entire city.

As for the other three incorporated towns, namely Hapeville, College Park and East Point, I promise to co-operate with the City authorities on a fair and just basis in making all needed improvements.

Permanent thoroughfares should be constructed under capable engineering supervision throughout the County Districts, and maintained. Every public highway where people reside in Fulton County will receive my best efforts to put it into first-class shape in the way of paving and repairing.

Once a job is started it should be finished with as little delay as possible consistent with good work, AND THEN MAINTAINED.

Recent advertisements in the interest of the candidacy of my opponent in which much has been said about his independence indicate that he is not independent, but suspiciously subservient to undue influence. He and the influence back of him have resorted to innuendo and implied slander. Such methods are employed by those pernicious political influences which seek to deter a decent, self-respecting citizen from offering for public office to represent his constituency in the interest of the people.

Those who know me best know that I am devoted to the principles of fair dealing and just treatment for every section of the County, and for every element of citizenship.

I am absolutely unpledged to any man, or interest, or set of men, or interests.

I have no connection directly or indirectly with any firm or corporation now doing business with, or which proposes to do business with, Fulton County.

I am not independent of the will of the people, and I promise to cast my vote for road and other development work where the greatest good for the greatest number will result.

The good people of Fulton County, where I was born and reared, will not be misled or influenced against me by the unscrupulous tactics of my opponent. Rather have the votes of hundreds of thinking people who demand fair play been diverted to me. I have faith in the people and am confident of election.

I earnestly solicit the votes of the white men and women voters of Fulton County on September 13th, and if elected, pledge my best efforts to merit your confidence.

Respectfully,

EDWIN F. JOHNSON,
For County Commissioner.

LAWYERS INDORSE JUDGE W. D. ELLIS

Lawyers of Fulton county were practically unanimous Thursday afternoon in endorsing the candidacy of Judge W. D. Ellis for re-election to the bench of Fulton's superior court.

Following a meeting of the Atlanta Bar association, practically every member signed a public address declaring themselves a unit in favoring Judge Ellis against Carl F. Hutchinson, his opponent, in the primary next Wednesday. A large number of those present at the meeting affixed their names later the total list practically duplicating the membership roster of the bar association.

Attorney Reuben Arnold, the first speaker at the meeting, announced that its purpose was to act on the candidacy of Judge Ellis. He said that those in close touch with county political affairs realize that there is a strong and unanimous delegation among supporters of Judge Ellis to the situation and put in a great deal of hard work before the end of the primary.

Will Work for Ellis.

Before the meeting adjourned, several lawyers volunteered to work for Judge Ellis at the polls in the various precincts.

Several members of the association, including John M. Slaton, former governor; Stephen Hopkins, John A. Hyndman, Nalley, Rector, C. Crane, Walker, McElveen, P. H. Brewster, and R. R. Jackson, spoke briefly. Judge Powell presided.

Lawton Nalley stated that Hutchinson will not receive a majority from certain organizations in the city to which he belongs.

Mr. Slaton declared that the greatest danger lies in over-confidence of the Ellis supporters. He said that a number of contests in which there is a great deal of political feeling are to be decided in the primary and for that reason the judiciary contest may be overlooked by some voters.

John A. Hyndman said: "I would hate to be a judge of the Fulton superior court with all the members of the bar against me."

Address by Lawyers.

The public address signed by the Bar association is as follows:

"We, as lawyers of Fulton county, feel compelled to speak our deep convictions as between the candidacy of Judge Ellis for re-election and that of Carl F. Hutchinson.

"We are a unit in favoring Judge Ellis.

"Those of us present at this meeting are authorized to speak for all but a bare handful of the lawyers of this county. We are lawyers of no special class. Some of us constantly represent cases against corporations.

This is the time when you must positively use care in selecting foods—when you must use care in selecting articles of food, to be sure that you get the real food values that help build up good health.

You must have the vital elements in foods if you want to keep well. These vital elements cause the food you eat to assimilate—it means health and growth in children—also in grown-ups. It means replacement of worn out tissue, the building of lost bodily vigor. In fact, it is absolutely necessary to life itself.

Many food authorities agree that pure baking powder and good plain flour are much better for food value and health than many self-rising flours.

For the best of health—for the most economical results—use only plain flour and good baking powder.

YOU, AS A GOOD HOUSEWIFE know that the time to add anything to flour is just before you begin your baking, not months before and you also know that no prepared mixtures such as the self-rising flour can be as fresh—can be as certain in results—as the good old fashioned straight flour and pure baking powder.

and some frequently defend them. Some practice mostly in the civil courts and some mostly in the criminal courts. We represent every line of business and our resolution speaks the voice of practically all the lawyers of this county.

"If you doubt the unanimity of opinion among the lawyers ask any lawyer you meet on the street.

"Better still, ask your own lawyer.

"Of course the lawyers have no right to select a judge.

"The responsibility for this rests with all the voters, and we do not seek to usurp their privilege in this respect.

"But we have a right to express our opinion. In a crisis like the present, it is our duty to speak. We are obliged to know more about the qualities and fitness of these two men than the general public can possibly know. We practice daily in the courts and daily come in contact with them. It is our right to express our opinion to our fellow citizens on this subject, and we do appeal to our fellow citizens to join us in returning Judge Ellis to the bench.

"The rights, liberty and happiness of each of you are profoundly affected by the character of the man you choose for this office. Any one who votes to put an unfit man on the bench, does a disservice to himself, his family and his neighbors. Friendship and political alliances have no place in judicial election.

"The right made public the new law simply permits the railroads to grant passes to sheriffs and their deputies who are engaged in transporting criminals" Mr. Perry said. "The matter is entirely up to the railroads and all the sheriff has to do is to apply to the carriers for the passes."

"It shall be lawful for all common carriers in this state to issue annual passes to all sheriffs and their lawful deputies. Provided, that the term sheriff and deputy shall mean one sheriff and one lawful deputy for each county in the state."

"Ask yourselves this question: Why is it that practically all the lawyers who know both men and practice in the courts are unanimous in endorsing Judge Ellis?"

Railroads Not Forced to Give Sheriffs Passes

The state public service commission has no authority to require railroads to issue passes to sheriffs of Georgia and their deputies but the railroads may issue such passes lawfully since the passage of a bill to this effect at the recent session of the legislature, according to a statement issued Thursday by James A. Perry, associate member of the commission.

Mr. Perry recently has received inquiries from several Georgia sheriffs relative to the manner in which the new law operates.

"The new law simply permits the railroads to grant passes to sheriffs and their deputies who are engaged in transporting criminals" Mr. Perry said. "The matter is entirely up to the railroads and all the sheriff has to do is to apply to the carriers for the passes."

"It shall be lawful for all common carriers in this state to issue annual passes to all sheriffs and their lawful deputies. Provided, that the term sheriff and deputy shall mean one sheriff and one lawful deputy for each county in the state."

"Ask yourselves this question: Why is it that practically all the lawyers who know both men and practice in the courts are unanimous in endorsing Judge Ellis?"

"The right of the city of Atlanta to tax foreign corporations doing business in this city, which was upheld by the supreme court of Georgia, was upheld in the supreme court of the United States Thursday when the cases involving this question were dropped by agreement of counsel.

Those testing this law were the Coca-Cola company, Thomas E. Glenn, and the Empire Cotton Oil company.

Through the removal of these cases from the docket of the United States supreme court, the decision of the Georgia supreme court sustaining the city remains in force. News of this action was received in Atlanta Thursday from Washington.

Several months ago the city of Atlanta brought suit against these companies seeking to force them to open their stock books so that the names of stockholders could be disclosed for taxation.

The case was brought in the Fulton superior court and the city was a victory, which later was upheld by the supreme court of the state. The defendants then appealed to the supreme court of the United States.

Lawyers for the companies decided Thursday to drop the cases. Under the rules of the court the clerk has authority to remove such cases from the docket during recess.

BURNS CLUB HEARS MISS WHITESIDE AND MISS BARKER

For the first time in the history of the club members of the Burns club of Atlanta were allowed to invite lady friends to the meeting at the cottage Wednesday evening. Miss Tommy Dora Barker, city librarian, and Miss Mary Brent Whiteside, Atlanta poet, giving the program of the evening.

Miss Barker read a paper on "Georgians in History," in which she cited many Georgians who have won fame in the literary world. She read extracts from the works of some of Georgia's leaders in the world of letters. Miss Whiteside read a paper on "Living Poets of the South."

A. S. Taylor gave a humorous account of an imaginary visit to Burns' native birthplace in Scotland, using an appropriate song to give local color to each spot mentioned. Pyramus H. Bell's recital of "Tam o' Shanter" was a distinct feature.

Member Scout Council To Visit All Troops On "Education Week"

Fifty-three members of the Atlanta Boy Scout council will aid in the advancement of educational week by making one visitation to Boy Scout troop on Friday night of the week and making a talk to the members of the troop about each one of them attending school themselves and to use their influence in getting other boys to attend. They will emphasize to the Scouts the Boy Scout standard which requires every scout to maintain an satisfactory record in scholarship and deportment.

Following are the names of the Atlanta Scout council and the troop which each one will visit:

COURTHOUSE ELECTION WILL BE CONTESTED

Notice of a contest of the recent election held in Camden county to decide on the removal of the courthouse from St. Marys to Woodbine was received Thursday by Secretary of State S. G. McLendon. The contest will be filed in the Camden superior court, the law requiring that notice of such contest be filed with the secretary of state.

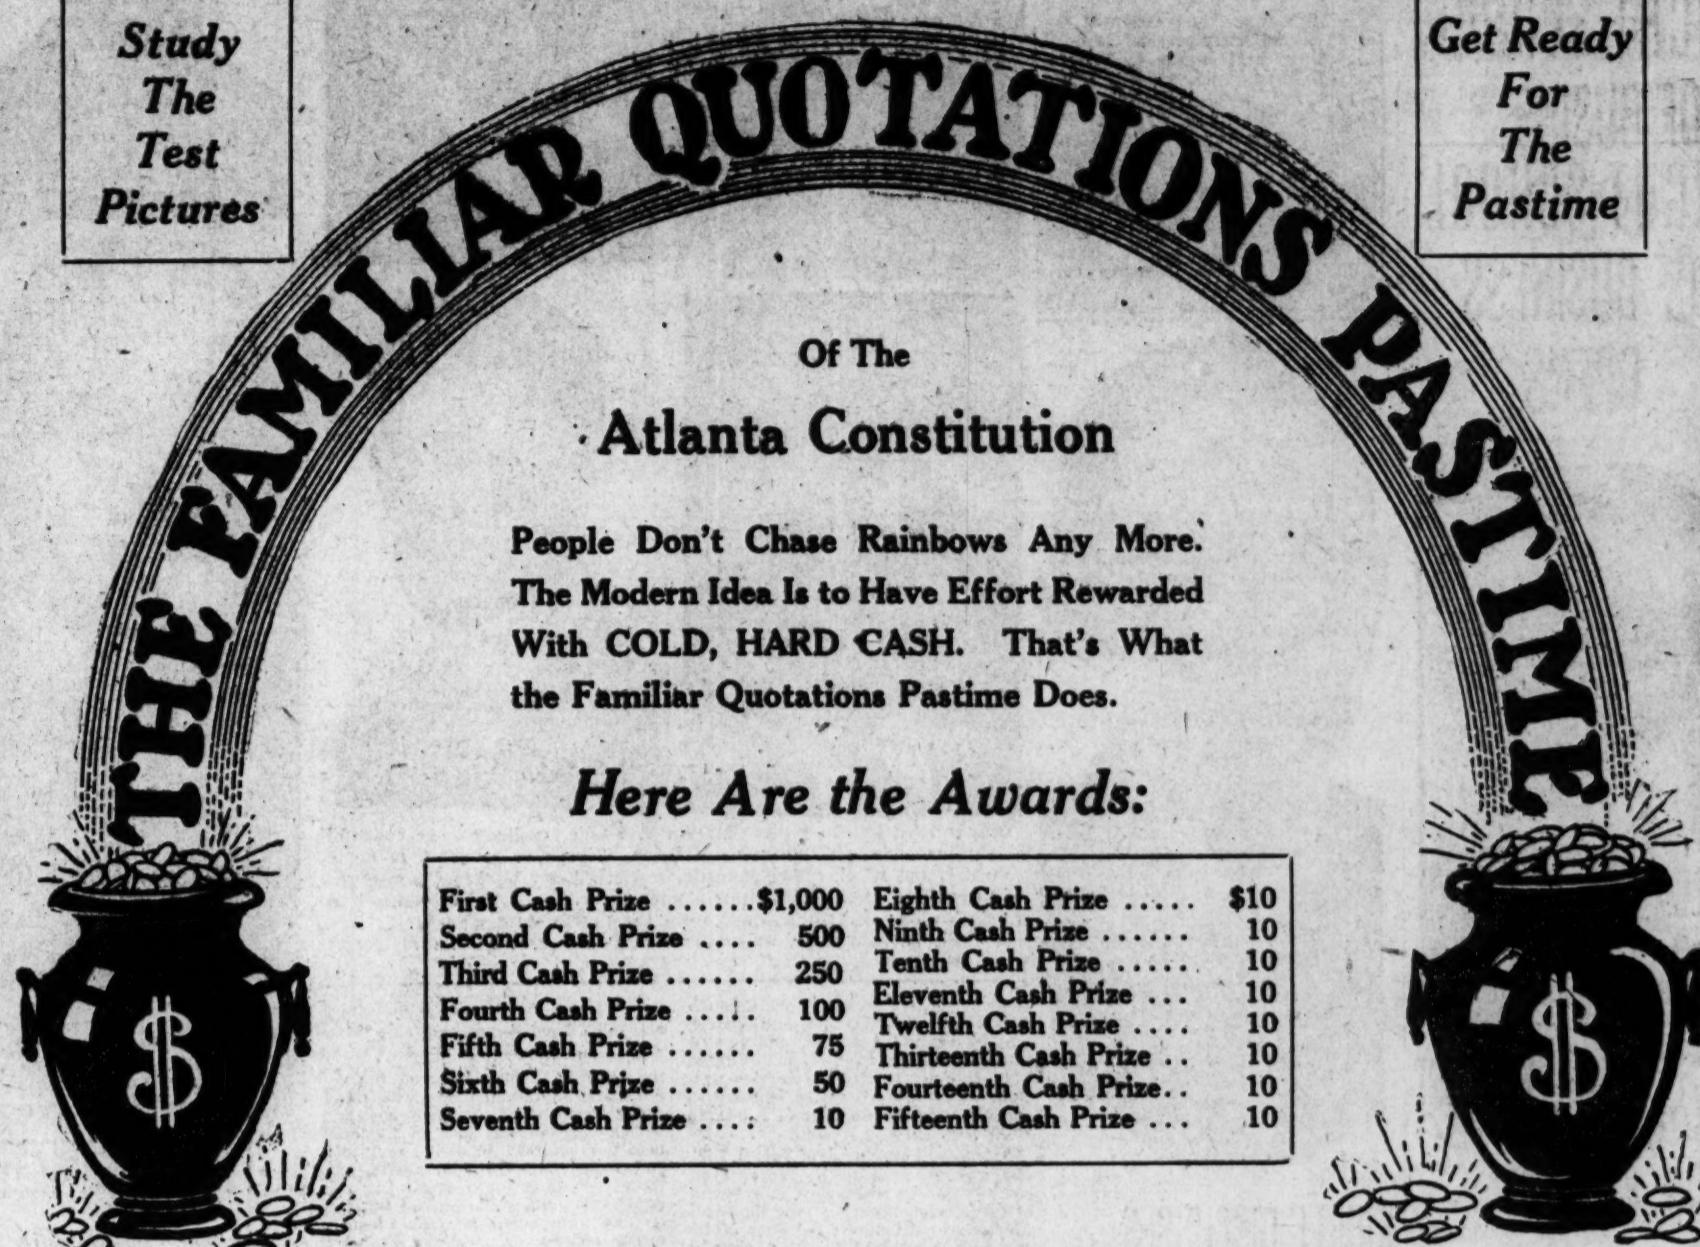

In an election held recently it was voted to remove the courthouse from St. Marys to Woodbine. The vote was 30 more than the two thirds vote of the county needed to win for Woodbine. The election is being contested by citizens of St. Marys.

and that pupils had been enrolled recently on an average of 300 a day. Several civic organizations are co-operating in the work, among them the Rotary club, Parent-Teacher association and boy scouts. Friday eighteen troops of boy scouts will appear in various parts of the city to assist in behalf of Education Week.

In connection with the educational week work a normal school for teachers is being held in the leading schools of the city. More than 1,200 teachers are taking the courses.

SACRED HARP SINGERS CONVENE HERE TODAY

The 18th annual convention of the United Sacred Harp musical association will be held in the auditorium today, Saturday and Sunday.

All sacred harp organizations in the United States will be represented at the meeting. Eight district vice-presidents from Georgia will attend.

Odes and hymns with harp accompaniment will be sung by a sacred choir. Numbers from the official song book "Ordinal Sacred Harp" will be included in the sacred concert numbers.

Efforts will be made, it is said, to have the headquarters of the association established in Atlanta. Local officials say that in the event such action is taken a huge auditorium will be erected in all probability.

The officers of the organization are Georgia. They are:

J. S. James, president, Atlanta, Ga.; Bernard Avery, vice-president, Marietta, Ga.; Mrs. S. C. Casey, secretary, Atlanta; T. B. Newton, general manager, Alpharetta, Ga.; Wiley J. James, chaplain, Tallapoosa, Ga. Assistant officers are: P. B. Lowery, assistant manager, Atlanta and Forest Park, Ga.; Mrs. Fred Drake, assistant secretary, Atlanta, Ga.; Rev. D. Henderson, assistant chaplain, Jonesboro, Ga.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS ARE FREED BY COURT

Charges of reckless driving preferred against two drivers of automobiles who figured in accidents resulting in deaths were dismissed yesterday afternoon dismissed by Alderman Charles Chosewood, of the third ward, who presided in police court.

The defendants were W. E. Lomax, of 48 North Rodgers street, and Mrs. Frank Johnson, 26, of Macon. The accident in which Mrs. Johnson's car figured occurred just a couple of hours before her arraignment in court.

It was claimed that her machine crashed into the rear of the auto containing the family of W. M. Archibald, of West Orange, N. J., injuring his son, Walter, age 12. The accident occurred at Third and Juniper streets.

The charges against Lomax grew out of an accident on H. E. Farr, 505 of 305 Oak street, on the evening of August 7. Evidence before the recorder showed that Farr attempted to cross from the south side of Edgewood avenue to the north side to catch an inbound Georgia avenue street car at the time he was hurt.

PATROLMAN ANDERSON BACK ON JOB AGAIN

Disabled for nearly a year from a bullet wound through the lung, inflicted by an unidentified desperado he was attempting to arrest, Patrolman J. W. Anderson, 34, of 245 Jones avenue, Thursday was back on the job feeling fully able to again assume the duties of a policeman. He was shot last December, the bullet entering his chest and penetrating the lung.

Thousands Of Women Are Now Taking This Newer Form Of Iron

Worn-out Housewife Tells How She Quickly Regained Her Health Strength.

"Only a short two weeks ago I was tired, nervous and worn-out from the drain on my nerves strength of house hold drudgery. I thought I could not keep up another day. I then learned of the treatment of the newer form of iron has given me a marvelous new strength and energy. Now I can do my house work with help, and do not have to sit at home in the 'all-in' sick and nervous condition."

"The above is a typical hypothetical case of Mrs. Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital of New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. She can be well and strong and full of vigor, force and power unless your blood is rich in iron. It is the newer form of iron that helps you to regain and overcome disease and that nourishes your organ in your body. When your blood becomes thin, pale and watery, it does not longer support your vital organs and as a result you may have pain in your heart or kidneys, feel faint, weak, and feel all 'run-down' and tired out."

When your blood lacks iron do not waste time taking stimulating medicines or tonics. Instead, eat more iron-enriched food, eat more meat, eggs, fish, beans, spinach, lentils, apples, etc., and in a form easily assimilated into your blood.

Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today. Take it for a few days if you have not like thousands of others, obtained most surprising health, strength and energy, the confidence and courage to meet life's money. The following local druggists will sell you Nuxated Iron with this "satisfaction or money back" guarantee.

EDUCATIONAL RALLY PROVES BIG SUCCESS

Clergymen, presidents of Atlanta Parent-Teacher associations, and principals of city schools, attended the American citizenship luncheon at the Ansley hotel Thursday at noon.

M. M. Parks, state superintendent of schools; W. A. Sutton, head of the city schools; Dr. Ashby Jones, and Rev. J. W. Ham, were the principal speakers.

Superintendent Parks spoke of American citizenship and the constitution of the United States.

He emphasized the necessity of all school children from the seventh grade on to the pupils in high schools and college according fundamental knowledge of what the constitution of the United States sets forth, and the vital clauses it contains.

Mr. Sutton spoke of the work in citizenship being done in the public schools, and future plans that would more thoroughly fit each student for the tasks that confront the citizenry of America at the conclusion of their education.

Mrs. J. E. Andrews, state and city chairman of the American citizenship organization, and president of the Parent-Teacher association of Atlanta, who presided, spoke, urging the closest co-operation between all civic bodies, and state and city officials in making the influence of the citizenship of the country felt in every town and hamlet in the state.

Dr. Ashby Jones in a brief address commended the activities of the scores of people in the city and state in bringing the issue of citizenship more forcefully before the people.

Mr. Ham told of his visit to Japan, showing the children in the schools of that country study the American constitution in conjunction with their school work. He told, too, of the trip the school officials in Japan award each student upon the completion of his course of study.

MUST BE CORRECTED!

Several hundred Atlanta citizens were deprived of their constitutional right to vote in Wednesday's primary because their names did not appear upon the registration lists, notwithstanding their conceded qualification.

Many men and women who had paid their taxes, who had registered and who had complied with the election laws in every respect, through no fault on their part, were denied enjoyment of a sacred privilege of American citizenship.

Somewhere, somehow and by somebody a serious blunder had been committed. Either the local primary election system is grievously at fault, or else it is being faultily administered.

Otherwise every qualified voter who applied for a ballot last Wednesday would have been able to exercise his right to the elective franchise.

The Constitution does not assume to fix the blame.

We do not profess to know where the fault lies, nor do we care.

It may be in the system, or it may be elsewhere.

But we do know that hundreds of good citizens of this community have been shorn of a right guaranteed them by the constitution, and that the community has suffered serious injury thereby.

Wherever the fault is, it must be corrected before another election is held!

Such an un-American incident must not be permitted to feature another election in Atlanta!

Such a condition is a menace to democratic government.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Senator A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky, charges that the government makes a practice of confining shell-shocked patients in lunatic asylums.

He denounces this as "an outrage," and if conditions are as he describes them he is right.

His charges should have at least the effect of ascertaining whether or not his allegation is founded on fact.

Senator Stanley said:

These mental diseases need atmosphere; they need a peculiar treatment. If you take a man with shattered nerves and put him with a lot of shouting, howling lunatics, with madmen, you will drive him crazy."

Deploring the lack of suitable government hospitals in which to properly take care of the heroes whose minds were impaired on the battlefields of France, Senator Stanley declared that the shell-shocked men are scattered throughout the country in insane asylums "in proximity to incurable lunatics," and he advocated the establishment "of a hospital in some suitable place, such as Washington, where, amid surroundings of beauty and culture, the unfortunate can obtain help and restoration."

Whether or not the District of Columbia offers the most suitable site that can be obtained for it, such an institution ought to be established, with political or local community ambitions set aside, and with thought given to no consideration other than the welfare of the men and the country's duty to them.

In many respects the shell-shocked men are the most pitiable of all the casualties of the world war.

They sacrificed their reason that their country might live in honor, and they are entitled to everything that the government possibly can do to help them and contribute to their happiness and comfort.

An "air congress" is to be held in London next year, and let us hope that it proves more successful than ours is.

Congress seems to be willing enough to ration the coal if somebody will only provide the coal for it to ration.

First and foremost in importance, the matter of a few thousands of dollars should not be permitted to stand in the way of making this development along the broadest possible lines.

The right location should be procured, whatever it may cost.

A few thousand dollars amounts to little in making a 100-year's investment.

Since the Girls' High School has been housed for almost a half century in a plant that is unsanitary and not fire-proof, it is reasonable to expect that the proposed new plant will be built to last for at least twice as long.

Therefore, in building, not for twenty-five nor for fifty years, but for a century, the question of cost should be given the least consideration.

The city of Atlanta, with fixed assets, according to the latest report of the city comptroller, of more than $30,000,000, and an annual income of $4,000,000 from taxes, is certainly able to get what it wants in the way of a site and to pay for the right kind of buildings.

The work preliminary to construction in accordance with this broad plan should be started without a day of unnecessary delay.

THE

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week
The Quest of Alistair

BY ROBERT ALLISON HOOD

Next Week, "The Sheridan Road Mystery"
By Paul and Mabel Thorne

As soon as he had raised himself, the door which had been for some time exerting a painful pressure against his back, opened with great suddenness and the landlord entered with a candle in one hand and a cudgel in the other, followed closely by Lorraine.

Layburn lay on his back with the Indian boy sitting on his chest, with hate and triumph in his eyes and his open clasp-knife in his right hand ready for use. A few feet away Alistair was kneeling over Monte with Herb beside him. His face was the first thing Lorraine saw as she entered behind Humpty. He was panting heavily and his cheek was badly cut where in his fall he had struck the corner of a chair. However, he was able to smile into her eyes. As for Lorraine, her eyes looked into his, luminous with tears unshed, and he read in them a message to which his own heart responded with a leap. In these brief minutes of stress they had just passed through they had come closer, perhaps, than a month of intimacy might have brought them. For a moment, forgetful of the bizarre group around them, and the strangeness of the whole situation, they looked into each other's eyes and soul spoke to soul of a love that must have been nascent, but until now had not revealed itself to either of them.

Then came an interruption. A man stood in the doorway looking warily upon them. Alistair leaned over for his pistol that lay on the floor where it had fallen, and then rose quickly from Monte's prostrate body. Then he picked up Layburn's revolver from the table where it still lay and put it in his pocket.

"Been a little argument, looks like," the stranger said with a note of sarcasm. "I was ordered to be here at 10 to take a party south Penticton way. A chap called Layburn; must be one of you, I take it."

"That is the gentleman there on his back to the floor, but I don't know whether he will need you now or not." Alistair replied dryly, calling the Indian boy off. Then turning to Lorraine he asked: "What are we to do with this cousin of yours, Miss De Roche? Shall we prosecute him for cattle stealing or shall we let him go if he leaves the money behind?"

"He says that he is not my cousin, and I am glad—glad—that that is so. I think, though, that we should let him go. I have to think of father—it might kill him to know the truth of this—and if you think that it is all right, I would rather let him go."

"Monte to be allowed to go free also?"

"Yes, Monte, too."

Before letting Layburn and Monte go, Alistair made the formal sign a paper which he had drawn. This was to obviate the possibility of any legal complications in regard to the cattle, either with Layburn or anyone else.

When this was done and he had seen the last of the two he drew a deep sigh of relief.

Remaining at the hotel that night, Alistair was up early in the morning, and by half past seven was able to get Lancaster on the telephone at the hotel in Kamloops. On learning the circumstances the dealer consented to take back his money, although it was plain that he was much annoyed. He stipulated, however, that Alistair would bring it to him at Kamloops on the morning train which was due at Garston about 8. Alistair asked him to advise Mr. Durie of his safety and the reason for his desperation of last night. There was just time to give directions what to do with the cattle and to leave a message for Lorraine as to where he was going. She was not yet up, but Ted was. He was feeling very seedy and half sick from the effects of the liquor and the drug that Layburn had given him. Alistair took pity on him and suggested that he accompany him to Kamloops. This, he felt, would not only be a distraction for the boy, but it would be a relief to Lorraine to have the responsibility of him off her mind for the present.

On the train, Alistair tried to rally Ted out of his dejection, which seemed to him to be too acute in a healthy boy and his contrition too abject for the fault he had committed. He feared that there might be something else that he was hiding that troubled his conscience. "Don't be afraid to tell me, Ted," he said. "You must think of me as a friend who wants to help you, you know."

"It was I with Monte and Jack Beckles that held you up that night at the Appleby's," the boy burst out at last falteringly and with eyes averted. "I was drunk at the time—I never would have done it; but I guess she saw how it was with me—and I was sore—and—" He stopped, unable to go any further.

"I have known all that for some time, Ted. Andy Wilmo, told me; but I guessed how it had come about. You're just a bit of a kid after all and haven't got much sense. All you needed was a licking and you got it, you know, so we're quits on that score, I hope—unless, of course—unless you still bear me a grudge, which I hope isn't so."

"No, but you've been too good to me. I don't deserve it after the way I've treated you." His voice faltered but his face had cleared.

At Kamloops they took the bus for the hotel, and Mr. Lancaster was awaiting them in the smoking room. The business with him completed, Mr. Durie and Alistair called at the latter's bank and arranged with the manager to draw through his correspondent in Edinburgh on Mr. Durie's bank there for the funds required to be remitted to Mr. Stubbs at Calgary. Then Alistair wired Stubbs to draw on him at Kamloops for whatever was the exact sum required for his share of the cattle to be purchased. When they got back to the hotel, Ted was waiting for them with news that he had found a friend who was motorizing through to Austin and as he would pass Inshallah, or the way he had offered them a ride in his car. Alistair could not accept, himself, as he had still considerable business to do, but he persuaded Mr. Durie to go with Ted.

Alistair was busy all afternoon. Now that Layburn was away the whole management of the ranch would be upon his shoulders and there were a number of people to be seen. He got back to his hotel for dinner about 6 and, in the dining-room, the waitress showed him to a seat at a table where sat a young lady. It was not until he had almost seated himself that he found it was Miss Pelton. She seemed as much surprised as he was, but greeted him cordially.

"A regular knight-errant to whom I seem to have been since I saw you last. And I was so mean about your going with Lorraine that I have wanted to ask your forgiveness ever since. Do you know that I went down to Garston that night to do so and drove in the dark all by myself because I could not bear to think that I had treated you so meanly. When I got there, the train had just pulled out and I could have cried almost."

Her tone was plaintive and her eyes pleaded forgiveness; but she was watching him curiously. For a moment he was at a loss what to say.

"Then, of course, you know that I had accompanied Miss De Roche to Revelstoke to get the horse back. I could hardly allow her to go alone, could I? I was hoping, however, that the community would not find out, as you know how such things are liable to be talked about. However, I suppose they were bound to know."

"Oh, it was all over the place next day—not by my telling, of course. I kept strictly mum; but you can't keep these things from getting out in a district like ours. The most romantic tales were told about you and Lorraine; and that you had eloped was the very least of them. Of course, I knew that it was all stuff and nonsense; but it is no use to contradict in a case of that kind as you only add fuel to the fire."

To change the subject, he asked her how she had managed to get away from school. It appeared that she had got another girl who was visiting at Duck Lake to substitute for her with the board's permission. However, she was going back to Garston on the train that night and had her horse and buggy at the hotel there, with which she would drive up in the morning.

"I am staying here all night," said Alistair in reply to her question, "and shall go out on the motor stage tomorrow morning, so I should be at Duck Lake before you probably."

Alistair was reading a magazine in the lounge room some time later when the hotel clerk told him he was wanted on the long distance telephone. It was the station agent at Garston to tell him that Miss De Roche's horse had arrived on the evening freight consigned to him and would be come over and take delivery of it. He looked at his watch and saw that there was just time to catch the train. He paid his bill and ran all the way, reaching the station just as the train was pulling out. As he walked into the day-coach and sat down panting for breath a soft voice sounded in his ear.

"So I'm going to have your company? How glad I am. I was just feeling so lonely." He turned and it was Miss Pelton there.

Strange to say, only a short time after he had left the hotel, the clerk had another telephone call for Mr. Kilgour.

"He has just checked out to go on the 9:30 eastbound."

"Oh," said the voice with an inflection of disappointment, "I wanted him to get something for me. Oh, by the way, is Miss Pelton there?"

"Miss Pelton, too, went out on the 9:30."

"Gee! what d'ye think of that. Lorraine, he's after her already," the voice came over the wires more faintly. "I'll bet he was fooling us about that business he said he had to wait over for." Then the voice spoke directly into the phone. "Yes, that is all right then, I'm sorry to have troubled you."

Alistair had forgotten all about Miss Pelton and his feelings were almost lost to him when he found himself six inches beside her. He experienced a certain embarrassment in explaining the reason for his change of plans.

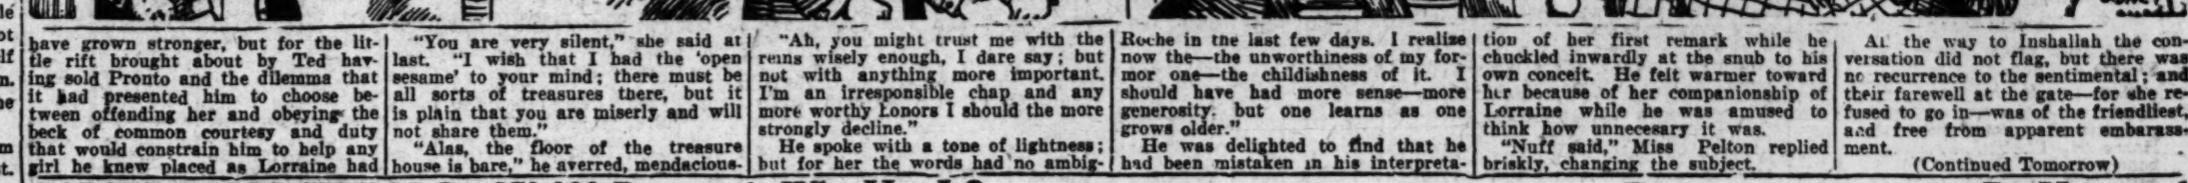

Her manner was playful and bantering but he found it difficult to keep the conversation from verging on the sentimental. Alistair was glad when, at last, the train drew up at Garston and they went over to the hotel together, he carrying Miss Pelton's suitcase.

"Good night," said Miss Pelton at the foot of the stairs, "or au revoir shall it be? as I hope to see you in the morning."

The glint in that she gave him had something in it, weather of reproach or entreaty or both he could not determine; but for a moment it troubled him vaguely.

The next morning Miss Pelton was afraid to drive home alone. Alistair agreed to her request that he should accompany her with as good a grace as he could muster.

He had not forgotten the look that Miss Pelton had given him on parting the night before. But the glamour that her personality had held for him when last he was driving with her had somehow been dispelled. He had grown to like and admire the girl. The feeling might very well

WELL I'LL TELL YOU GENTLEMEN—I GO TO WASHINGTON ONE HUNDRED PER CENT FOR THE PEOPLE—FEARLESS AND UNSHACKLED—to do the bidding of the majority of my constituents—and I hope that I can gain the confidence of the people such as you represent so that on the 10th day of next November you will go to the polls and do your duty as good American citizens by voting for me—how would you gentlemen like a little pre-war stuff to wash the dust out of your throats before you leave?"

At the way to Inshallah the conversation did not flag, but there was no recurrence to the sentimental; and their farewell at the gate—for she refused to go in—was of the friendliest, and free from apparent embarrassment.

tion of her first remark while he chuckled inwardly at the snub to his own conceit. He felt warmer toward her because of her companionship of Lorraine, while he was amused to think how necessary it was.

"Nuff said," Miss Pelton replied briskly, changing the subject.

DO YOU FEEL THIS WAY

The Authorman has just been guilty of an extravagance. After hovering long over the thoughts of the purchase, he has bought for his secretary, which appeals to his imagination, a little model ship to adorn the mantel of his den, at a price which would probably seem small to the fenders of these little ships but inconceivably large to one who hasn't dabbled in them. Yesterday, when he brought his purchase home, the Authorman was high, very high. Not only was an extravagant and becoming new hat, with a Paris label sewed right into the lining, could have been any more excited than he as he bore it home in triumph and placed it first in this position, then in that and stood off to view the effect—like the woman trying on her new dress.

But today the Authorman is down in the dumps.

I Must Have Been Crazy

"Why," he says, "did I spend all that money for that thing? What's the good of it anyhow? What do I want for it? Think of the hours of work it represents. I must have been crazy."

All then wistfully even as the woman with the new hat says: "Do you think it's really becoming?" "Do you think it really adds anything to the room?"

Do you recognize yourself in the Authorman's reactions?

I recognize myself at once.

It seems to me that whenever we purchase any luxury that lays hold of our imagination and taxes our pocketbook an expensive hat or gown, a car that costs more than we ought to pay, a piece of handsome furniture, a fine bit of sport equipment, we pass through these same phases.

And the Next Day...

First we find with the temptation for which we did well to tell ourselves that we would be foolish if we didn't but that it is a great bargain, that we won't get another chance, that other people with less income have away."

Tomorrow—The Authorman Is Shocked.

Script Dance

MISS NORA STIRLING.

Miss Nora Stirling, talented young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Stirling of East Lake and Atlanta, has been given the leading feminine role in "Welcome Stranger," a New York production which will open Monday evening, September 11, in the Bronx.

After playing for one week in New York, the company will make a tour of the south, the first stop to be in Birmingham, Ala. Miss Stirling will play in Atlanta the middle of October, at the Atlanta theater, when she will visit her parents. From this city, the tour will include New Orleans and then into California playing in all of the leading cities.

Miss Stirling demonstrated her dramatic ability when she was but a schoolgirl and attended Washington Seminary. After her graduation, she studied expression under Madame Alberi in New York, and was engaged to play a part in "The Tavern."

An engagement for the entire summer with the Toledo Stock company in Toledo, Ohio, where she made a distinguished record for versatility in her work, which was characterized by true appreciation of her art. She is a Tishy-haired girl, and is unusually beautiful on the stage. Miss Stirling is a sister of Miss Alexa Stirling, the noted golf champion, and the youngest of three charming sisters, the eldest of whom is Mrs. Walter Davison, who resides in Oregon.

SOOTHING FOOT BATHS.

I remember hearing a woman tell her friends that whenever her husband came home of an evening tired that he was easily irritated, she met the situation with a soothing foot bath. She said that it had failed to bring an apology later for his hasty words. There are few of us who have not had this man's experience, and it would be well if we learned to apply the same remedy.

Shoes at their best, are far from being the same size of the rest of the body, and its relation to the rest of the body, it is surprising that more troubles are not traced to abuse of the feet. In the foot are the most active excreting pores. The foot also has nerves that respond more sensitively to the nervous system than those from other parts of the body. Let me call it the seat of the sins, for materials that do not ventilate easily, and give it the circulation, which so often is impeded by the pressure of the shoe. Since the feet are so delicately allied to the nervous system, there will be a complete relaxation following the foot bath.

If the toes are red or inflamed, soak them for a time in hot water in which a half a teaspoon of alum, a half teaspoon of powdered borax, and two tablespoonsful of coarse salt have been dissolved.

Rub dry and wear a comfortable looking shoe for while, if there is a tendency to relaxation, soak the feet in a hot solution of Epsom salts. After the foot bath, a refreshing thing is to spray the feet with toilet vinegar or, if this is not on hand, with toilet water. If there is any soreness rub the places with a piece of cut lemon and let the acid dry into the skin.

Undecided: If you bobbed your hair and wanted to do it up again very soon, you could count upon sufficient growth in about three months. Of course you would require the assistance of a wavy comb, which would be caught in a net.

A Reader: Hair that is growing from a mole should be removed only by a skin specialist. Since yours is on the side of the forehead, so close to the hair line, there should be nothing disfiguring about it and I would leave it alone.

Tomorrow—Combining Exercises and Massage.

WASHINGTON SEMINARY

SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The Washington Seminary offers excellent advantages to students—board and room, piano, organ and musical literature. The music faculty consists of Miss Margaret Bartholdi, piano; Miss Rose C. Robinson, piano; Miss Clementine Macgregor, Graduate Metropolitan College of Music, New York, piano harp; and Mrs. Mary F. Cox, Graduate Tennessee Academy of Music, piano; George F. Lindner, violin; Mrs. Mary Lovelace Hurt, piano; Oscar Saenger, voice.

The Seminary may be substituted for certain studies in the literary departments and count as three units toward the literary degree during the time for a thorough musical education. The music lessons are given during school hours, mentally alert, thus avoiding the tedious afternoon music lesson hour.

Fretted Instruments Mandolin, Banjo, Ukulele, Harp under direction of Mrs. Mary Butt Griffith Dobbs.

HEALTH THE SECRET OF ATTRACTION

Women of today depend on a good deal upon the modern modiste and a knowledge of the cosmetic art to make them attractive. Too often there exists beneath it all a suffering woman whose nervous laugh or forced smile covers a pain or a ache caused by some feminine ill. Such a woman Lydia Phillips' Vegetable Compound will bring health and a happy relief from her suffering, that will make her far more attractive than costly gowns and cosmetics.

For nearly fifty years American women have relied upon this root and herb medicine to relieve their ailments.—(Adv.)

DRESS

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Ribbon Hats Are Worn by Women Who Are Not Ready for Velvet and Felt, and They Are Arranged in Soft Shapes Easily Pulled Into Place With the Hands After the Hat Is on the Head. No Decoration or Color Is Introduced.

Paris.—When Caroline Reboux started the fashion for collapsible ribbon hats she did the world a good turn. Women have gone so far as to wear them for formal hours, although they were intended to keep one's head easy in the motor, on a ship, in a train, in a gale of wind. Now they go to dances.

There are several new ones. They are no longer intended to be put into an envelope and carried in a handbag, but they do not need the protection of a hat box. That's the reason of their success in life; they prevent anxiety and yield nothing to any other hat in grace. They have grown larger since last winter, and the crown has taken on a few tricks of silk ribbons, but the shape comes in the place of the ribbon ones. Last winter they fell over each ear in the pirate manner adopted by much of the new trimming on felt and velvet hats, but this autumn they are arranged into a careless bow, an immense one, that runs across the back and stands far out at each side.

The sketch shows one of these. The original is in tete de negre, that brown shade that is like sealskin. It is copied in black and dark gray. One can pull the slightly wired brim into whatever flatings or scallops the face needs. It can be demure or full of coquetry. The bow tilts the brim up so prettily that it shows the back of the hair, which is a good line for even a young girl and a necessary one for a middleaged woman.

There is no determined effort to suppress black hats, so they will go on their successful career as though colors had not been invented. The actual rival of black is brown ranging from sealskin to onion skin. This has come about through the multitude of brown frocks worn, even for the evening.

There is no doubt that felt will have a large following. Also velvet. It is in the latter fabric that colors creep in, especially beige, which carries deep orange feathers or clippings of Indian embroidery. Caps of silver turbans are covered with bits of jade and metal embroidery, and ruby velvet turbans show a high front ornament of Venetian embroidery in rich tones.

WAYS WITH PRUNES. Many persons who have not used prunes during the summer for the obvious reason that during the hot months they are sometimes not fit to use will welcome back the time a few weeks later. The new season of prunes is on the market and affords many different sorts of inexpensive and easily prepared desserts. Remember that there are different grades of prunes. However, sometimes the very high-priced prunes are hand-picked simply because they are large. It is not worth while to buy this grade of prunes unless they are to be served simply steamed. Always inspect to see that they are firm and not broken. If they are broken the inference is that they were not firm at the time they were dried or broken or that they have been roughly handled. Here are some good prune desserts worth trying:

Prune Pie.

Soak a pound of prunes overnight and remove the stones. Fill a buttered baking-dish with alternate layers of prunes and buttered slices of stale bread. Have beat two eggs with one-fourth cup of sugar, add two cups of milk, pour over the bread and prunes, and bake for an hour.

Prune Pudding.

Wash two cups of prunes and soak overnight in water to cover. Cook until soft in the same water, sweetening taste. Remove the skins and half a package of gelatin, which has been soaked and dissolved, set into a pan of ice water and stir until it begins to thicken. Mould, chill, and serve with custard or whipped cream.

Jellied Prunes.

Wash two cups of prunes and soak overnight in water to cover. Cook until soft in the same water, sweetening taste. Remove the skins and half a package of gelatin, which has been soaked and dissolved, set into a pan of ice water and stir until it begins to thicken. Mould, chill, and serve with custard or whipped cream.

WOMEN WILL FIGHT CAPITAL PENALTY

With the abolition of capital punishment in Georgia as their objective, a score of men and women, headed by Mrs. C. T. Osburn, 50 Ponders avenue, will meet in room 413 Healey building Saturday afternoon, to elect officers for a temporary committee to fight for the repeal of the law making it legal to hang criminals.

The initial step in the fight to repeal the law was taken Wednesday at a meeting called by Mrs. Osburn.

Already, Mrs. Osburn says, many influential Georgians, including editors, lawyers, physicians, and ministers, have written her of their approval of the movement she has started. It has been indicated that the new organization will be directed toward saving Miss Cora Lou Vinson, convicted of murdering her husband. Mrs. Vinson was sentenced to hang, and her case is now pending in the supreme court.

The action to abolish the supreme penalty was hastened by the Frank DuPre case, it was stated.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh
Author of "The Woman Side of Retail Selling," "The Art & Science of Retailing," Etc.

In buying a clothes wringer, one of the important points for the housewife to consider is the placing of the springs which control the rollers and the gears. These should be hidden in the wringer to prevent clothes and fingers from getting caught in them about the gears. They should—be half-bearing.

Look at the metal parts of your clothes wringer. Are they heavily galvanized? They should be to prevent rusting. You must remember that a clothes wringer is an appliance almost entirely in and with water. Remember this point: the greater the diameter of the rollers, the stronger their pressure. This means that they will wring your clothes drier. Buy the largest wringer you can get, because even if you have only a small quantity of wash. Rollers about sixteen inches long are good for the average family use. Be sure to specify, in buying a wringer, what kind of tubs you have, as not all kinds can be used on round tubs and not all on square tubs. Also be sure that whatever kind you buy fairy opaque material are necessary in summer to exclude the light, unless Venetian blinds are used. These are, of course, ideal, as they permit the passage of air while shading the light. Many people like shades of glazed chintz in a small bedroom done in Colonial fashion, either with matching, or with inner curtains of dotted Swiss, net or marquisette, form a very pleasing finish to the windows without overdrapery.

The design of the glazed chintz should, of course, be inconspicuous, unless the shades are designed to act as decorative panels in the room, in which case a screen covered with the same chintz should be used to balance the window frame.

Room Size Antique Oriental Rugs Choice for $75

We are pleased to announce the arrival of the most beautiful collection of genuine antique Oriental rugs we have ever shown.

These are Kazak rugs, soft and heavy, woven long ago in the North Caucasus. The colors show the delightful mellowess of tone that only age can bestow. The sheen, too, is the result of age, and not of washing.

In the collection are a number of rare old prayer-rugs, in the quaint designs so characteristic of the ancient Orient. The wealth of tradition that attaches to them makes every piece a treasure.

In a collector's shop, these rugs would be priced at $300. We are particularly gratified to be able to offer them to you at the unprecedented price of $75.

Jim Brewster and Mitchell Report, Completing Tech's Roster of Vets

Preliminary Training, Under the Watchful Eye of Captain "Red" Barron, Nothing Strenuous.

BY JOHN STATION.

When Jimmy Brewster and Walter Mitchell reported for practice yesterday at Grant field, Tech's whole roster of old men was on hand. Practices started unofficially in the S. L. A. grounds, though the coach from Appling was on the field before the seventh. Until Coach Alex is able to come down in person "Red" Barron has charge of his men, both the old men and the new recruits. Those on hand at the present time are Frye, McIntyre, Davis, Lyman, Granger, Johnson, Al Station, John Station, Walter Mitchell, Monk Naylor, Jack McDonough, Pinky Hunt, Jimmy Brewster and Barron. Hope was entertained for Dummy LeBeau until the last, but he appeared on the side lines in civilian clothes the other day, and said that he would not be back unless he was fired from his present position. Not wishing him any hard luck, but hope the pink slip appears in his next pay roll.

"Red" is not so heavy as you would expect, but looks fine. Summer baseball has kept him in first-class condition. Jack McDonough, burned black as the ace of spades, will have his best year this season. Pinky Hunt, a logical man for fullback, is heavier than he has been. And all down the whole roll you will find the same thing—all the men in fine shape and prime condition.

The coaching personnel is the same with the addition of a trainer and helper, in the form of George Griffin, coach of the freshman team for the last two years. Of course Coach Alexander will be in charge of things down on Grant field. Coach Wood, forced to yield the best line in Tech's history, Kid Clay Napoleon, of many contests, will be the official scout and czar of the scrubs.

TO THE PEOPLE OF FULTON COUNTY:

I am a candidate for one of the two places at large on the Board of County Commissioners. I was a member of this Board during the years 1911-12-13-14, and during this time I always advocated the most rigid economy consistent with progressive methods in all county affairs. As evidence of this I wish to call your attention to the financial record during my term of office as compared with the past four years.

The total revenue collected through taxation to be expended by the Board of Commissioners during the four years in which I was a member of the Board was $3,472,000.00. Out of this total sum the courthouse was built at a cost of $1,384,000.00, and other real property acquired for county use of the value of $33,600.00.

During the past four years, 1918 to 1921, the record is as follows: There was a total revenue collected to be expended by the Board of $5,999,000.00, and the only real property acquired for county purposes was $64,115.00, showing that it cost the county over $3,000,000.00 more to run its ordinary affairs in the last four years, without apparent necessity, than during the four years when I was a member.

This comparative statement shows clearly the need of an economical and business-like management of the county's affairs, which it will be my purpose to insist on if elected.

I favor a change in the system of valuation in vogue at present by which Fulton County is now paying one-fifth of the entire state taxes, to a system that will put Fulton County on the same basis with all the other large city counties in the state.

I am convinced that one of the greatest needs of the county is an adequate system of repairs on all roads that will keep them in perfect repair and avoid rebuilding.

During my term of office I at all times advocated protection of the human needs of the county, such as charities, etc., and full co-operation in the matter of educational facilities.

I earnestly solicit your support and if elected will give my best efforts in serving the people of this county in every section, without regard to any special interests.

TULL C. WATERS.

Yankees' Homer Wins.
Chicago, September 7.—"Yan" Yankees' 10th win came in the tenth inning after Schalk's first hit was split by a foul tip, cracked out a home run which gave Chicago a 9 to 8 victory over Cleveland. Yaran was first up in the tenth inning.

The locals drove Morton off the mound and were helpless against Winn until Yaran's drive ended the game. In the 10th, however, he was forced to retire. Schalk will be out of the game for several days.

WESTERN TENNIS STAR TO MEET CHAMPION

San Francisco, September 7.—Another California tennis star, Miss Mary K. Browne, Los Angeles, this month will attempt to defeat Mrs. Molla Mallory, national champion, who already this year has turned back four assaultants from one invader from the far west, Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley.

Miss Browne, who is the second ranking woman player in the United States, leaves Monday to meet the champion in a special match at Forest Hills, N. Y., during the East vs. West series, according to announcement by Dr. Summer Hardy, San Francisco, president of the California Lawn Tennis Association.

TENNIS STAR WON'T RETIRE

New York, September 7.—Philadelphia to try to win the national singles championship for the third time in his career, informed the United States Lawn Tennis Association Thursday that he has no intention of quitting the game.

Jones' statement was something of a denial as there had been reports that he would give up national tennis.

"Something might happen next year or any year to prevent my making the trip from San Francisco to the east," he said, "but it is my intention to play the game as long as I can."

"The game has done me tremendous good, and I am better health than I enjoyed before. I won't stop playing as long as I can play reasonably well and I look forward to several years more of tennis activity."

JIM SCOTT, NOTED HURLER, STAGES COMEBACK

San Francisco, September 7.—"Death Valley" Jim Scott, once a world series hero, who was released from the Chicago White Sox several years ago, when it was thought he was through as a hurler, has staged a successful comeback that has been recommended to the New York Giants by Bill Lange, John McGraw's western scout, who once was a major league star himself.

"Pitching for the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league, Scott this year has had one of his most successful seasons, having won 21 and lost 6 games to date.

FIRST SIGNS OF THE FALL

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.

Signs of the times in Atlanta football coaches foregathered and Sammy Mayer looking for a motion picture job.

Sammy does this every fall. He invariably succeeds too. This time he is showing his versatility though. He's out looking for a vaudeville post. No, Sam's not going to attempt blackface or do a Ruba Marquard and inflict baseball anecdotes on a suffering audience. He's looking for a place somewhere in the front of a house.

By the way he had on a brand new front yesterday. He was wearing a starling just like a Ford car paintered a sickening canary color. He had on a trick hat that Scott Chestnut wouldn't have dared to wear in his boldest and baddest moment, and a pair of shoes that defied description and must have defied arrest for Sammy was free and unfettered as his journal is. The house staggered to press, or maybe it was the policemen.

Consistent.

Sammy believes in being consistent and doing in Rome as the Romans do. During the baseball season, when he is out of the field, he wears a baseball uniform. When he is in his citizen's clothes he affects a cap and eating tobacco.

When he goes into vaudeville he dresses up like the horse that nods twice to tell you that the trainer is holding up a blue handkerchief.

Politicians should follow Sammy's example and dress too. How else is the body politic going to know who to holler for.

We used to stand back in August, awe every time we saw a four-foot round the brim Stetson and a jinn swinger coat and knew that we were either gazing on a senator or the coming of a king.

Yesterday I saw both Walter Sims and Jim Woodward. Walter was wearing last summer's straw hat. So likewise was Uncle Jim.

Both were indulging in predictions and chewing tobacco.

Maybe the styles have changed and we didn't know it.

Crackers Drop Double-Header to New Orleans

Marshall Loses Opening Game and Tuero Assumes Responsibility in Second

Ladies and Kids' Day at Ponce de Leon—Joe Guyon's Home Run Proves Only Feature Of Afternoon For the Crackers.

The Atlanta Crackers, showing flashes of the kind of a ball club they ought to be, dropped a double bill 10-6 and 7-2 to the New Orleans Pelicans Thursday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park.

Marshall, hurling the first game against the Pelican southpaw Miller, allowed ten safe bingles which included two two-baggers.

New Orleans scored seven in the first two frames of the opener, and three more in the last half of the game. The visitors hit when hits meant runs, and seemed to be able to solve Marshall's offerings at will.

Wade in five times up made three safe hits, and a double. His activities with the willow, netted two runs for Atlanta. His hits in the seventh brought in Guyon, and a long drive to the right field in the ninth, made it possible for Guyon to score again on a sacrifice fly.

The Crackers staged another feeble rally in the fifth that netted them two runs, made possible by a double by Wade with two men on.

Smith at third seemed to be way off his stroke, and errors in the first game proved costly to the Crackers. Reed who replaced Hock at third in the middle of the first game, made some spectacular though unsuccessful tries for hot ones coming through third.

Pelicans Score.

In the second game that was concluded at the end of seven innings, the Pelicans made a run in the first, when they bunched three hits off Tuero, scoring Gilbert who landed safely on first with no one down, when he smashed a hit through the infield.

Smith at third seemed to be way off his stroke, and errors in the first three frames, but tallied in the fourth when Gilbert booted one in center field, and again in the fifth when Guyon took the breath away from the fans, by smashing a home run that knocked some chalk off the score board. There was no one on.

The sprinkling of fans beginning to gather a thrill of excitement in the seventh, the balloon went up in the seventh. Tuero struck Walker out, but Bogart who threw a monkey wrench into the gears several times in the afternoon, hit a double. He went home when Klugman threw the ball away over first following a bingle by Gilbert. Henry the next man up smashed a hit toward the right field, Klugman losing his stride again, muffed it so badly that Henry advanced to third and then home when Tucker hit a triple.

Ewald went to first on a fielder's choice, and scored on a muf at first. Wetzell doubled but died on second when Smith popped out to left field. The ladies and youngsters will be guests of the managers today.

RADIO DEPARTMENT

SIX RARE TREATS
OVER WGM TODAY

FIFTEEN MINUTES OF RADIO EACH DAY

BY EDWARD N. DAVIS

Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government

LESSON NO. 142.

Multi-Stage Amplification.

Efficient amplification, that is, amplification which secures the maximum increase in signal strength, without distortion, is secured only when the elements of the amplifying circuit are so mechanically arranged, electrically connected and properly adjusted, as to conform to the critical values necessary for magnifying the incoming signal.

Music by Seven Aces,
"Most Beautiful Girl,"
Massengale, Volpi, Mrs.

Deagan, Mrs. Albert.

You folks who like music and own radios, listen here.

We have a regular treat for you today, six sets of treats, in fact, all crammed into two scintillating hours of music of every imaginable sort.

First on the program will be one of America's most beautiful girls. Judges in a great midwestern newspaper beauty contest said she was the most beautiful, but no girl is that, you know, except your own.

She is Miss Edith May Patterson, 19, of Pine Bluff, Ark. You won't be able to see her when she plays the piano tonight so we are printing her picture on another page.

She will play "Somewhere" and "Let Me Tell the World You're Mine," which is the title of the inspiration of her dazzling beauty and dedicated to her by the composer. She will make a five-minute talk on beauty and contests and things in general. Her voice is almost as pretty as she is.

Miss Patterson is appearing in person at the Radio City this week.

The Seven Aces will be the main attraction of the 6 o'clock bill. They will play a half dozen rollicking jazz numbers, mixed up perhaps with something better—but just as entertaining wifial. News flashes and Constitution features will be transmitted.

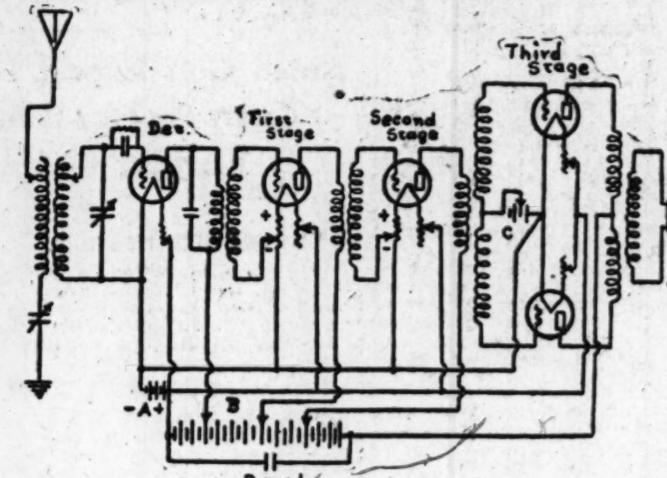

That's the crop for 6 o'clock. Now we come to the big part of the evening.

Here is the line-up: W. N. Massengale, baritone; Signor E. Volpi, accompanist; Miss Vernon Kimball, reader; Mrs. Louise Howard Deagan, pianist; Miss Blanche Albert, violinist.

How does that sound? It will sound better when it comes from the triple blaring voices than it does by eye in the drab black and white of print.

The 9 o'clock program, with a variety of vocal and instrumental numbers enumerated "In The Air Today," will run a full hour with brief breaks for transmitting important news flashes.

WGM signing off; good-bye.

The accompanying diagram shows a typical arrangement embodying a detector and three stages of audio-frequency amplification and includes several important features which may be used to illustrate certain valuable points necessary for satisfactory operation.

In the detector circuit, the use of the grid condenser increases the sensitivity of the circuit and greatly improves the rectifying action, as owing to the addition of this condenser the incoming signals always cause a decrease in the average value of the plate current regardless of whether the normal value of the plate current is located on the straight or curved portions of the characteristic curve.

It will be recalled that the characteristic curve, which shows the relation existing between various values of grid voltage and the corresponding values of plate current, has the shape of an elongated letter "S" and that with no grid condenser it is necessary to use either the upper or lower curved portions of the characteristic curve to secure proper rectification. The insertion of the grid condenser, therefore, has the decided advantage of permitting rectification on any portion of the characteristic curve. Shunting the grid condenser by a high resistance, known as a "grid leak," "Just A-wearing for You" one of Frank L. Stanton's lovely ballads, sung by Miss Zula Foster, brought a dozen landphoned requests for more of Frank Stanton's songs. They will be granted some other time.

The program included many popular, sentimental and classical airs, first and second movements of all the hour from 9 to 10 o'clock. From the landphoned response it was apparent that Miss McClatchey had selected the favorite songs and instrumental pieces of just about all the local listeners in on WGM. They were all exquisitely rendered.

Another program will be arranged by Miss McClatchey some time in the not distant future.

MUSICAL PROGRAM PLEASES HEARERS

Seven Aces Heard Again.
Much Landphoned Applause for Miss McClatchey's Recital.

After a refreshing program of jazz orchestra music by Warner's Seven Aces at 6 o'clock yesterday evening and after the radio public had been given time to pack back into its normal pace, WGM's new giant broadcasting station spurred it into quick time again with a smashing musical hit in a recital arranged by Miss Belle McClatchey.

The Aces program of dance music included "Oogie, Oogie, Wa, Wa," "Hot Lips," and the popular waltzes of a few seasons ago, "Dream of Heaven." Other numbers were "Bring Back My Lovin' Man," "Tricks" and "St. Louis Blues."

The usual Constitution features and late news flashes were read between the numbers.

Miss McClatchey's program included numbers by herself, on the violin, Miss Emily McEntire, on the piano; Miss Zula Foster, soprano; H. C. Childs, piano, and S. F. McClatchey, guitar.

"Just A-wearing for You" one of Frank L. Stanton's lovely ballads, sung by Miss Zula Foster, brought a dozen landphoned requests for more of Frank Stanton's songs. They will be granted some other time.

170 GALLONS SEIZED IN BOULEVARD HOME

In a raid at the home of G. M. Davis, 117 North Boulevard, city detectives and county deputies Thursday afternoon obtained 170 gallons of whisky stored in the basement of the house.

Davis was arrested on a charge of violating the prohibition law and was released under $1,000 bond. Davis said he sub-rented his basement to a man whose name he did not know and said this man was the owner of the liquor.

America's Prettiest Girl Is Constitution Visitor

What would you do if the most beautiful girl in the United States came in your office just for a chat with you?

There were about a dozen or so reporters around The Constitution office yesterday who started out mighty quick to think up just what they would do when they heard that Miss Edith May Patterson, of Pine Bluff, Ark., was going to pay The Constitution a call. Only one of them of course, would talk to her, but there were wide possibilities for selection.

When Miss Patterson, who is appearing all this week at the Rialto theater, did come there was ample evidence at once that no preparation was necessary for her, for she's the most unassuming girl there ever was, to be "the most beautiful girl in the United States."

That is what Miss Patterson was named by artists and sculptors who were engaged to act as judges in the beauty contest conducted last year by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. And those judges were mighty competent, if remarks of some members of the staff of The Constitution who specialize in the pastime of entertaining pulchritudinous femininity, could be taken as indicative of competency.

Miss Patterson is now on a tour of the southern states, having just completed a similar tour of central and middle western states.

A vaudeville bill of many appealing features and a most excellent program of motion pictures is offered at Loew's Grand theatre for the last half of the week. Seldom in an act seen here that has more real laughs in it than the offering of Edgar Bixley and Ben Lerner. As an English character and a straight role, these boys create no end of fun and keep their audience in gales of laughter from their very first entrance. As a closing number they introduce a burlesque on Grand opera that is rich in humor and one of the funniest stunts seen here in a long time.

"The Mysterious Will" is a novel one act play presented by Nelson, Walk and Company is also a very interesting and amusing offering. Its plot keeps one guessing until the very finish and scattered throughout the playlet are any number of amusing situations.

Burns and Larkin in grotesque and eccentric acrobatic feats offer burlesque athletics and are very comic. Other good acts are the Spencer sisters and Wilbur in versatile bits of vaudeville and Jean Perry in impersonations.

The feature of the screen bill is Alice Calhoun in "Rainbow."

Brigman's Big Used Car Clearance Sale Begins Today

We are discontinuing the sale of passenger cars, to devote our entire time to the distribution of Federal Trucks.

We have seventeen used cars that must be sold. We have no room for them in our new home—and we move September 15. We are not going to store these used cars elsewhere. Come down today and take your pick.

The lot comprises fours, sixes and eights. Both open and closed types. All priced below actual value. Some of these cars have been used as demonstrators—these as well as some of the others are guaranteed by us.

Prices range from $55.00 to $1,250.

Terms will be arranged. We need the space these cars will occupy more than the money they represent.

See more detailed description of some of these cars on the Classified Pages of this paper, or, better still, drop down and see the cars. We are not going to "haggle" over prices and terms. Come early and get your pick.

White skates in the skating rink at Lakewood park Miss Lillian Foote, 16 years old, fell and broke her arm Thursday night. She was taken to Grady hospital, where she received treatment and was then taken to her home at 67 Kelley street.

The injured women were taken to Davis-Fischer hospital, where they were given treatment. According to a report filed with acting Chief of Police Lamar Lamar, the accident occurred when Mrs. Bryson attempted to pass another automobile while in front of the approaching street car.

Lieutenant Colonel R. H. Williams, assistant chief of staff of the fourth corps area, presented the medal which was given to the national guard for its importance of the national guard and praising Company F for its correctness in drill and appearance.

"Company F is a most excellently drilled company of soldiers. Much credit is due to Captain Oberdorfer for the showing his company has made tonight. I enlisted in the national guard of New Jersey, where I received training in my military training. I enlisted in the regular army in 1808, and since that time I have been conscious of the regard the national army has for the national guard; because they realize that the national guard is ready for any emergency at all times.

"Corporal Virgin has won his medal in three successive competitive drill contests, and he is to be congratulated upon being the last man to stand up in such a well-drilled company."

Captain Peter F. Clarke made a short talk to the new Gate City Guards. "The men of Company F should be proud of the name of the Gate City Guards. I was a member of the Gate City Guards for two years and I was instrumental in getting you named as the successor for the old guard company. I am proud of you men and feel sure that you will reflect honor to the guards whose names they now bear."

Judges for the drill were: Colonel J. M. Kimball, Jr., Colonel W. D. Dickey, Lieutenant Colonel E. H. Armond, Lieutenant Colonel R. L. Williams, Captain Charles A. Wright, Captain Eugene E. R. Schmidt and Captain Basil Stockbridge and Captain Peter F. Clarke. Mrs. Clarke also witnessed the drill.

Is Your Business Sick?

When sickness overtakes you, call the doctor. If it is legal trouble, go to the lawyer.

But when your business gets sick, the inclination is too often to let it rock along and recover of itself. Sometimes it may do it, and again it may lead to bankruptcy.

There is but one safe thing for a failing or ailing business: Call the expert accountant. He will diagnose the trouble and set it on the road to recovery. Try it.
